

OMA to benefit from new alliance with VINCI Airports

- A growth-delivering alliance with the world's first private airport operator
- Benefits will include increasing air connectivity and optimizing the passenger experience
- OMA joins a leading international team, consolidating its operations and generating new opportunities

Monterrey, Nuevo León February 17th, 2023.- Nicolas Notebaert, President of VINCI Airports and CEO of VINCI Concessions today visited Monterrey airport and presented the positive impact of OMA joining VINCI Airports, its main shareholder since the end of last year.

The new alliance brings together VINCI Airports, the world's largest private airport operator, which welcomed 209M passengers in 2022, and OMA, operator of 13 Mexican airports that support investment and business in the country.

OMA will benefit from VINCI Airports' expertise in operations, investment, project management and environmental transition. The synergies will allow increasing air connectivity, optimizing the passenger experience through the expansion and renovation of airport infrastructure and improvements in service.

Entering VINCI Airports' international network of +60 airports in 12 countries will also bring benefits to OMA's team, notably accessing VINCI Airports in-house training, mentoring programs, commitments to diversity and broad career paths.

With this large participation into OMA, VINCI Airports expands its operations in America, and establish itself for the first time in Mexico, a country with great opportunity development. With the experience of both groups, strategic actions will be taken to drive growth in the American market and to generate positive impact throughout the region.

Committed to local development, VINCI Airports is aware of the role that an airport plays in its region and works in collaboration with local and federal authorities, as well as the communities in each region where it operates.

"The support of VINCI Airports as our strategic partner is and will be a very important factor for the consolidation of our goals. They are here to provide intelligence and experience, scaling OMA to another level and differentiating us in the airport industry," mentioned Ricardo Dueñas, CEO of OMA.

"As a long-term partner of OMA and Mexico, VINCI Airports will support the growing demand for domestic travel and international travel, especially to and from the United States", said Nicolas Notebaert, President of VINCI Airports, CEO of VINCI Concessions and new President of the Board of Directors of OMA.
